

A 32x32 pixel grayscale image of a stylized, symmetrical figure, possibly a deity or a complex symbol, centered on a white background. The figure has a central vertical axis and horizontal bars, with various pixelated details. The image is composed of black and white pixels, with the figure's form defined by the arrangement of black pixels. The central part of the figure is a vertical column of black pixels, with horizontal bars extending from it. There are also smaller, more complex shapes on either side, suggesting a face or a set of wings. The overall impression is that of a low-resolution, digital artwork or a heavily pixelated scan of a physical image.

